Morgan State University originated in 1867 as the Centenary Biblical Institute under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1890, the Institute was renamed Morgan College in honor of Dr. Lyttleton Morgan, whose support enabled the school to offer academic work at the college level. The College remained under church jurisdiction until purchased by the State in 1939. In 1975, Morgan State College was granted university status (Chapter 550, Acts of 1975).

A public university, Morgan now includes the Schools of Business and Management, Education and Urban Studies, Engineering, Graduate Studies, and a College of Arts and Sciences. The University offers a comprehensive undergraduate program built upon basic degree offerings in the liberal arts. Baccalaureate degrees are offered in many disciplines, including preprofessional programs. The University's School of Graduate Studies first offered advanced degrees in education in 1964. Since then, the scope of the graduate studies program has broadened to include a wide range of degrees in the arts and sciences as well as in professional fields.

Encompassing thirty departments, the University offers forty-four baccalaureate and twenty-eight master's degree programs, as well as a doctoral program in Urban Educational Leadership. All academic programs are approved by the faculty, which consists of 54 full professors, 56 associate professors, 66 assistant professors, and 31 instructors. During the fall of the 1986-87 academic year, 3,725 students were enrolled at Morgan. Of these, 2,776 were full-time students and 949 were part-time students.

The University is governed by an independent Board of Regents. The Board's thirteen members are appointed by the Governor with Senate advice and consent. Twelve members serve six-year terms. The student member serves a one-year term (Code Education Article, secs. 14-101 through 14-107).
