The Governor created the Maryland Greenways Commission in March 1990. Greenways are corridors of open space which are connected for recreation and conservation. They follow streams, ridgetops, rivers and other natural features. The Commission will implement a model project along the Patapsco River. The Commission also will develop a blueprint for a network of greenways in urban and rural areas throughout the State.

Appointed by the Governor, the Commission consists of twenty-three members who represent State and local government, conservation and community groups, and business.

In June 1990, the Commission submitted a preliminary report of findings and recommendations to the Governor.

As part of the Chesapeake Bay Agreement, the Governor's Commission on Growth in the Chesapeake Region (also known as the 2020 Commission) was established by the Governor in October 1989 to guide the State's growth patterns until the year 2020. The Commission is to study the relationship between development in the Chesapeake region and pollution of Chesapeake Bay. The Commission also will recommend ways to limit the impact of anticipated growth on the Chesapeake Bay watershed.

In November 1990, the Commission submitted preliminary proposals for legislation to protect Chesapeake Bay and the State's dwindling supply of open space. Reports and additional proposals were submitted to the Governor in January 1991.
