Created in 1980, the Judicial Compensation Commission makes recommendations to effect judicial compensation that will attract highly qualified persons to the bench and enable judges to serve without economic hardship (Chapter 717, Acts of 1980).

The Commission reviews judicial salaries and pensions every two years and must submit its recommendations at least every four years to the Governor and General Assembly. The Commission's salary recommendations are introduced as a joint resolution in each house of the General Assembly by the fifteenth day of the session. While the General Assembly may not increase recommended salaries, it may decrease them. If it fails to adopt or amend the joint resolution within fifty days after its introduction, the salaries recommended by the Commission do apply. Commission recommendations with respect to pensions are introduced in the form of legislation by the Senate President and the House Speaker and become effective only if passed by both houses.

The Commission is comprised of seven members appointed by the Governor for six-year terms. No more than three members may be individuals admitted to practice law in the State. In nominating and appointing members, special consideration is given to persons knowledgeable in compensation practices and financial matters. Two members are chosen from nominees of the Senate President, two from nominees of the House Speaker, and one from nominees of the Maryland State Bar Association. Two members are appointed at large. Members serve without compensation (Code Courts and Judicial Proceedings Article, sec. 1-708).

The Juvenile Probationary School of Baltimore County was created in 1966 (Chapter 719, Acts of 1966). It was established for minors (under twenty-one years of age) who are placed on probation before judgment in connection with any charge for violation of State motor vehicle law or State or local criminal law over which the District Courts have jurisdiction. Minors are referred to the School by the District Court or other judicial officers of Baltimore County.

The School provides courses in driver safety; civic responsibility; the United States and its heritage; and present and future ramifications of violating State laws for the individual and the community. All probationers must attend classes, which are held in the District Court rooms.

The School is funded entirely by Baltimore County government. The Director and five Assistant Directors are appointed to four-year terms by the Governor with Senate advice and consent (Code 1957, Art. 27, sec. 646).
