The Institute is governed by the State Emergency Medical Services Board. Created in 1993, the Board is to develop and implement an emergency medical system plan for Maryland. The plan will define criteria for designating trauma facilities; guidelines for the delivery of emergency medical services; improved communications and transportation systems; public information and education programs; and a system to evaluate emergency care in Maryland.

The Board consists of eleven members. Nine are appointed to four-year terms by the Governor. Two serve ex officio. The Governor designates the chairperson.

STATEWIDE EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICES ADVISORY COUNCIL

Established in 1993, the Statewide Emergency Medical Services Advisory Council advises the State Emergency Medical Services Board on finances, policies, guidelines, regulations and procedures necessary to operate the Statewide Emergency Medical System. It also helps the Board develop and implement a comprehensive emergency medical services plan.

The Council's twenty-five members are appointed by the State Emergency Medical Services Board with the approval of the Governor. Annually, Council members elect a chairperson with the Governor's approval (Code Education Article, sec. 13-1D-11).

The Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems (MIEMSS), formerly under the University of Maryland Medical System, was made an independent agency in 1993 (Chapter 592, Acts of 1993). The Institute's Charles McC. Mathias, Jr., National Study Center for Trauma and Emergency Medical Systems was reassigned to the University of Maryland at Baltimore at that time. The R Adams Cowley Shock Trauma Center, however, continued under the University of Maryland Medical System.

Located at the University of Maryland at Baltimore, the Institute coordinates all emergency medical services in Maryland (Code Education Article, secs. 13-1D-01 through 13-1D-13).
