

pledged party and elected officials; and pledged at-large delegates.

Delegates Elected by Voters. Forty-four delegates and eight alternates were elected directly by the registered Democratic voters in the March 3, 1992 primary election. The delegates and alternates were apportioned among Maryland's eight congressional districts according to a formula based on population and the average of the Democratic vote in the last two presidential elections. In the selection process, any registered Democratic voter who is a bona fide resident of a congressional district is eligible to run for election as a convention delegate. Pledged delegates to the convention were allocated in proportion to the percentage of the primary vote in the district won by each candidate.

Unpledged Party & Elected Officials. In 1992, ten persons were designated as delegates by virtue of their office. They included the Governor and nine members of the Democratic National Committee residing in Maryland (state party chairperson, vice-chairperson, four state party representatives, and three at-large members). Two additional delegates were selected by the State Central Committee at its May 14, 1992 meeting.

Pledged Party & Elected Officials. Nine pledged party leader and elected official delegates were chosen by the Democratic State Central Committee on May 14, 1992. In this selection, priority was given to city mayors, State legislative leaders and legislators, members of Congress not previously selected, and other State, county and local elected officials and party leaders.

Pledged At-Large Delegates. Also selected by the Democratic State Central Committee on May 14, 1992, were fourteen at-large delegates and three at-large alternates. Here, priority was given to minority groups, political subdivisions not represented, and an equitable balance of men and women. Delegates selected by the State Central Committee were allocated to presidential candidates according to the percentage of the vote a candidate received in the statewide presidential primary.
