Federal Building, Room 2115
300 South New St. (302) 674-2331
Dover, DE 19904 Annapolis: (410) 974-3558

The Mid-Atlantic Fishery Management Council was established in 1976 in accordance with the federal Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976, as amended. For both domestic and foreign fisheries, the law ensures sound fishery conservation and management measures. The act gives the United States exclusive management authority over fisheries (except for highly migratory species of tuna) within a fishery conservation zone of 3 to 200 miles offshore. As one of eight regional fishery management councils, the Mid-Atlantic Council prepares fishery management plans for implementation by the U.S. Secretary of Commerce.

The Council's twenty-three members represent Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. Nineteen voting members include the Regional Director, National Marine Fisheries Service; a state fisheries official from each state; and twelve public members appointed to three-year terms by the U.S. Secretary of Commerce upon nomination by the state governors. Four nonvoting members represent the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service; U.S. Coast Guard; U.S. Department of State; and Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission.

Chair: John G. Tarburton, Delaware

c/ o Office of the Secretary
Dept. of Agriculture
50 Harry S Truman Parkway
Annapolis, MD 21401 (410) 841-5880

The Mid-Atlantic Poultry Health Council was established in 1987 in accordance with a July 22, 1987, memorandum of understanding, signed by the governors of Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. The Council coordinates policy for poultry disease management. Annually, the chair of the Council rotates among the member states.

MARYLAND POULTRY HEALTH ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Chair: Lewis R. Riley, Secretary of Agriculture

Appointed by Governor: Archibald B. Park, D.V.M.; three vacancies.

Formed by the Governor in 1987, the Maryland Poultry Health Advisory Committee advises the Secretary of Agriculture on poultry health management. In the event of an outbreak of poultry disease in Maryland, the Committee helps the Secretary of Agriculture implement control measures. The Committee also represents Maryland on the Mid-Atlantic Poultry Health Council.
