

The Financial History of Baltimore

By J. H. HOLLANDER, Ph.D.

Associate Professor of Finance in the Johns Hopkins University.

400 pages, 8vo. Cloth, $2.00.

This work is probably the first exhaustive study of the financial history of an American city. The author traces in detail the development of municipal expenditure, revenue, indebtedness and financial administration through the several periods of pre-corporate and corporate history. It has been found desirable to make use almost exclusively of original sources, and to emphasize the influence of administrative change upon fiscal growth. The narrative proper is supplemented by critical comment and constructive suggestion. The volume appears with peculiar timeliness, as Baltimore is inaugurating a second centenary of corporate existence with a new reform charter. While primarily of local interest, the book appeals to all students of local finance who will recognize many phases of the experience of Baltimore as typical of the American city. The work is fully equipped with the requisite statistical appendices.

464 pages. 8vo. Cloth. Price, $3.50

From The American Monthly Review of Reviews.

Among the recent studies in municipal government one of the most serious importance is Dr. Howard Kemble Stokes' account of "The Finances and Administration of Providence." Regarding Providence as a typical modern American city, Dr. Stokes traces in outline the social and economic forces underlying the present structures of local government during the first one hundred and fifty years of the city's history: and during the last fifty years, sets forth the effects of personal, political, or corporation motives upon the development of the administration, and the income and outgo of the city in more complete detail.
