The first of these is the fact that the British government has been unable to secure the cooperation of the American states in the war against France. This is due to the fact that the American states are divided in their opinions as to the proper course to be pursued in the present crisis. Some of the states are in favor of a firm alliance with France, while others are in favor of a more cautious policy. This division of opinion has led to a series of disputes between the states, and has prevented the British government from securing the cooperation of the American states in the war against France.
