

I congratulate you upon the results of your deliberations, and when the measures you have passed and the bills which you have defeated come to be considered in their practical consequences, I believe it will be found that your work has been done with intelligent discrimination, as I am sure it has been with absolute integrity and independence.

Many and great differences of opinion have naturally existed amongst us upon the important measures of the session, and doubtless, there are not a few disappointments over some of your conclusions.

But the views of the majority fairly expressed, after full discussion, shall be accepted, not only with good temper, but also with respectful deference, as containing the best judgment of the honest and intelligent representatives of the people.

You will go home to your constituents after these ninety days spent in their service, with the proud satisfaction that you came here with the sincere and resolute purpose to do your best to advance the interest and promote the prosperity of our dear old State, and that you have done your work with gratifying soundness of judgment and with perfect uprightness.

I wish for you all the fullest measure of happiness and success in the private walks of life to which you are about to return, and now declare this House adjourned without day.

Attest:—CARLTON SHAFER,
Chief Clerk.

WM. S. MERRICK,
Journal Clerk.
