MR. ENEY: This is in no sense a formal meeting and the arrangement of the tables which gives it that appearance is quite by accident. The Law School has taken over all the usual rooms we use for examinations and that relegates us to this courtroom, and we didn't want you out in the audience, so to speak, and this is the only way we could get enough table room and when we have other meetings, as I am sure we will, we will use one of the seminar rooms upstairs where we can be around sort of a U table and it makes it much more informal and easier to work.

I also want to apologize, or rather, not so much apologize as explain why there is not a large number of members of the Commission present at this meeting, and I do not want you to feel that for that reason it is not regarded by us and by all members of the Commission as a very, very important meeting. The way we work our organization is pretty much/you work in the Legislature,
