

All of the several kinds of repair materials which we formerly used have now become unobtainable with the exception of the cellulose acetate foil and the tissue used in the lamination process, and at times during the year there was grave danger that these materials too would be cut off. However, small strictly rationed quantities of such materials have been received each time we were threatened with a shutdown, and we are hopeful that we shall be able to continue during the coming fiscal year at the worst on this hand-to-mouth basis.

However, in spite of all the difficulties encountered, more materials were laminated during the year than ever before. The total of 11,036 pages exceeded last year's mark by something over ten percent. It cannot be expected, however, that our type of work will ever far surpass this figure. The actual lamination is fast enough but the preparation of old and decrepit records is inevitably time-consuming.

The materials completed during the year are as follows:
