

Our daily work leads us to the many records depositories, museums and art galleries in our area, sometimes we must go farther afield. Mrs. Carr has made several additional trips to Baltimore and the counties in pursuance of her work on the revised edition of the Maryland Guide. Mrs. Jacobsen has been especially interested in the Quaker records and this interest led her to Stony Run Meeting, Home-wood Meeting and the Quaker collection at Swarthmore College. Mr. Weatherly has found it necessary to visit the American Philosophical Society in Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania Historical Society Library and the Frick Art Gallery in his studies of Maryland portraits and Maryland furniture.

Visitors.

Among the increasing number of visitors who came to the Hall of Records for a variety of reasons to do research, to study procedures and to exchange professional gossip were the following:

Donald C. Anthony, Associate Librarian of the State of New York, Albany, New York; Rosamond Randall Beirne, Architectural Historian, Ruxton, Maryland; Mayfield Bray, Research Assistant to Dr. Posner in his Study of State Archives; Helen Duprey Bullock, Director, Department of Information, National Historical Trust, Washington, D.C.; H. A. Burch, Historian, George Washington University, Washington, D.C.; Mrs. George E. Burnett, Trustee, Maryland Historical Trust, Salisbury, Maryland; Mrs. Paul R. Brooks, Cambridge, Maryland; Mrs. Irvin C. Brown, Indexer, Church Records, College Park, Maryland; Norwood Brown, Alderman, City of Annapolis; Ben F. Busby, General Engineering & Cartography Company, Augusta, Georgia; William L. Calderhead, Director, Historic Annapolis Research Project, History Department, United States Naval Academy; Manoel Da Silveira Cardozo, Historian, Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C.; Reverend Edward B. Carley, Historian, Catholic Diocese of Wilmington, Wilmington, Delaware; Kenneth L. Carroll, Professor at Southern Methodist University and Quaker Historian; J. M. Chambers (Col. USMC RET.), Rockville, Maryland; Charles B. Clark, Historian of Maryland in the Civil War; Leonidas Dodson, Archivist of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; Benjamin P. Ebersole, Baltimore; Admiral E. M. Eller, USN (ret.), Naval Historian, Washington, D.C.; Charles E. Fenwick, Historian, St. Mary's County, Leonardtown, Maryland.

Henry Chandlee Forman, Architect-Historian, Easton, Maryland; Charles Francis Gosnell, State Librarian and Assistant Commissioner for Libraries, New York State Library, Albany, New York; Carolyn A. Graves, George Peabody College, Nashville, Tennessee; Len Guttridge, Biographer of Stephen Decatur, Alexandria, Virginia; Richard W.