In January 1987, the Governor created the Advisory Committee on Utility Lines in Annapolis. The Committee explored possibilities of funding underground utility lines in Annapolis over a period of years.

Within the Historic District of Annapolis, the project of putting utility lines underground begins in June 1989. By December 1989, work should be completed on School Street, State Circle, and Francis Street.

The Advisory Committee has been inactive since 1988 when the General Assembly appropriated funds for the project.
