

the manner to be by them prescribed; and the same shall be assessed to the proper parties and taxed to them thereafter and paid as other taxes are required to be paid.

SEC. 115. The said Mayor and Common Council may levy annually a tax on the property in said city, assessed as aforesaid, not exceeding ten cents in every hundred dollars of the assessed value thereof, which shall be a lien on the said property, real, personal or mixed, of the tax-payers of said city respectively, till paid, and interest shall be chargeable on such taxes after thirty days from the time when such tax is due and payable; they may also, in their discretion, allow a discount not exceeding five per cent. for prompt payment of said taxes.

May levy annually a tax

SEC. 118. The Mayor and Common Council may pass all ordinances necessary to regulate or prevent the going at large in the city limits of horses, cattle, sheep, goats, swine, geese or any other brute, beast or fowl; to regulate and prevent the going at large of dogs in said city, and provide for the killing of worthless, annoying or dangerous dogs; to levy a tax on dogs, male or female, kept in said city limits; fix the rates of said tax, and to collect the same from the owners in the same manner as other city taxes are in this charter allowed to be collected, and may, in default of payment of said tax, provide for the killing of dogs whose owners make such default.

Regulate and prevent the going at large.

SEC. 119. The Mayor of said city, in case he disapproves of any ordinance passed by the Common Council of said city, may refuse to sign the same, and shall return the same to the said Common Council at its next meeting, with his reasons for withholding his signature therefrom; and if the said ordinance, when again put upon its passage, shall receive the votes of four-fifths of the members of said Common Council, it shall become a valid ordinance without the signature of said Mayor.

Disapproves.

SEC. 2. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect from the date of its passage.
