

Declaration, is given in full from the original source by Father Hughes, History, etc. (Documents, I, pt. I, pages 145-149), with the following reference: "General Archives, S. J., Anglia Historia, iv, pp. 877-880. Three and a half closely-written pages, large folio, contemporary copy, the paper being, not that of Rome, but of England or Flanders, the hand the same as that which wrote out other documents at this time in England, apparently Father Alacambe's; and the endorsement seemingly in the hand of the General, Mutius Vitelleschi. There are some clerical errors in the copy". In the Maryland Historical Society Fund Publication, No. 35, referred to above, Father Hughes, page 58, corrects from the original twelve readings of the Latin text in Fund Publication, No. 7.

(6) Hughes, History of the Society of Jesus in North America (Text I, 201, 246-247, 266-267) prints extracts from the correspondence between Blount and Vitelleschi on this matter of the Maryland Mission.

(7) Maryland Historical Society Fund Publication No. 28, Calvert Papers, No. I, 209.

(8) Hughes, work cited above, (Text I, 251). It may be observed, however, that the phrase "white for the harvest" was a favorite with the writers of colonization tracts.

(9) Hughes, work cited above, (Text I, passim) and Foley, Records of the English Province of the Society of Jesus are sources for our knowledge of Father White. Sommervogel's edition of De Backer's Bibliothèque de la Compagnie de Jésus, VIII. 1091-1093, gives a list of his writings and recommends a number of nineteenth century biographical studies. The early Jesuit bibliographer and historian, Southwell, in the edition of the Bibliotheca Scriptorum Societatis Jesu of 1676, page 60, eulogizes Father White and cites his writings, presumably all in manuscript, as these: Grammaticam, Dictionarium, & Catechismum lingua Marilandicae. Praeterea. Expeditionem, & Historiam illius Gentis. The "Expeditionem" referred to was doubtless the "Relatio", which, in the copy now in the Jesuit Archives, (see Hughes, work cited, Documents, Vol. I, part I, pages 94-107) was worked upon by Father Southwell in preparation of material for a history of the Jesuit missions.
