

The present provisions relating to boats licensed to dredge in county waters and the numbers being issued by court clerks are also proposed for deletion since the county water licensing provisions were superseded by section 698(b), amended by 1971 legislation. For a discussion of the effects of this legislation see the revisor's note in section 4-1004, supra. Subsection (c) presently appears as 66C, section 701(a) of the Code, and is inserted here for organizational purposes. A reference to "handscrape" is added wherever "scrape" presently appears because this section is intended to relate to "handscrapers".

Subsection (d) appears as section 701(b) of the Code.

Subsection (e) appears as section 701(c) of the Code.

Subsection (f) appears as section 702(1).

Subsection (g) presently appears as Article 66C, section 702(m) of the Code. A clause is added at the beginning of this section subjecting its provisions to other laws relating to firearms to place the Code user on notice of the existence of other laws and dispel any thought this section grants any right contrary to other laws. The present references to ancient firearms are proposed for deletion despite their historical significance as weaponry of the Oyster Wars. The last sentence is proposed for deletion because it duplicates other criminal statutes prohibiting persons from firing at law enforcement officers.

The only other changes made are in style.
