Died—In England, October 14, in his 92d year, CHARLES WEST, who was 34 years office-keeper at the Royal Powdermill at Faversham; he entered into the army in 1741, in the first Regiment of Foot Guards, was three months a private, three years a corporal, and 29 years a sergeant, the whole time in one company; was at the battle of Fontenoy, the siege of Olerd, and likewise the siege of Maastricht, under the command of the great Duke of Cumberland and Prince Ferdinand; and had his constitution equalled his spirit and loyalty, would again have borne arms in defence of his King and Country as a volunteer in the last war.

Lately deceased, in Amwell, New-Jersey, — Naylor, aged about 103 years. — She was born in that neighbourhood in its first settlement. Her husband was killed in Braddock's expedition in the year 1755; since which time she has remained a widow being left with nine children. — She enjoyed good health until within 24 hours of her decease, and last summer could walk two or three miles. It is remarkable, that for upwards of fifty years past, her whole diet consisted of Bohea Tea and a little Bread and Butter, three times a day; and her amusement was continually smoking tobacco.

The following is a copy of the Note which was presented by Mr. JACKSON to the court of Berlin, respecting the scandalous seizure of Sir C. RUMBOLD. The Note delivered to the different courts abroad, it appears, varied according to their respective relations with the Germanic Empire.

"His Majesty has received the account of an unexampled act of violence committed at Hanburgh against the person of Sir George Rumbold his minister at that place, who was forcibly seized in his own house in the night of the 25th of Oct. by a detachment of French soldiers, and carried off, together with the papers belonging to his mission.

"After the repeated proofs which the conduct of the French Government has exhibited of an utter contempt and defiance of every obligation of the law of nations, his Majesty can feel no surprize at the perpetration even of such an outrage as this upon the territory of a weak and defenceless state; but his Majesty owes it not only to himself and to the respectable and unfortunate city, whose rights are most immediately attached, but to his relations with the rest of Europe, and to the dignity of every power which has till the inclination and the means of preserving its independence, to lose no time in entering his solemn protest against so atrocious an aggression.

"If any thing could render such a proceeding more insulting and alarming, it would be the explanation which his Majesty understands to have been given of it by the French resident at Hanburgh; namely, that it took place in consequence of orders given by the minister of police at Paris to the commander of the French forces in Hanover.

"His Majesty trusts, that there will not be found a power upon the continent which can remain insensible to the consequences of a measure which, in its principle and example, not only menaces every court which may at any time fall within the reach of French arms, but which is subversive at once of the sacred rights of neutral territory, of the accustomed intercourse between independent States, and of the privileges of public ministers, hitherto respected and recognized by every age and by every nation.

"His Prussian Majesty unquestionably will not only participate in the sentiments which must be common to every sovereign, but the vicinity of his dominions, and his situation, both as a director of the Circle of Lower Saxony, and as a guarantee of the Germanic constitution, will induce him to feel a deep and peculiar interest in this unparalleled transaction. His Majesty cannot therefore allow himself to entertain a moment's doubt that his Prussian Majesty will second and enforce, in the most effectual manner the representations which have been made by the Senate of Hanburgh, for the immediate release of his Majesty's minister, and will further see the urgent necessity of taking such measures as may be best calculated to obtain from the French Government a public reparation, adequate to the heinous nature of the indignity, and may also prevent for the future, the repetition of outrages which threaten to destroy the remaining distinctions of civilized Europe.

"Same night Mr. Klein's store in Church-street was broken into and plundered of a considerable quantity of dry goods, and notwithstanding the vigilance of our active watch, the robbers got clear off with their booty.

The inhabitants of this part of Virginia have seldom witnessed such a severe season as the present. Yesterday morning the thermometer stood at eleven, and this morning there was ice across the river (except about a ship's passage in the channel) a considerable distance below the old fort.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1815.

Our next Attorney General U. S.—Mr. Lincoln having resigned the office of attorney general, a successor of course must be appointed: we have observed that the Philadelphia Gazette has announced Mr. Rodney, of Delaware, as about to be appointed to the vacant situation, and, among other weak and yet malignant paragraphs, gave currency to the following, last evening:—

If Mr. Rodney is really to fill the vacancy in the highest legal department of the United States, it will afford another instance of the deference of Mr. Jefferson for the public opinion. It is pretended to be forgotten, that this Mr. Rodney, thus picked up by the administration, was in a most pointed and conspicuous manner dismissed by his constituents from their services? And after all this, does it evince Mr. Jefferson's regard for the popular sentiment to raise him to a station, for the duties of which it is shrewdly suspected, he is not competent?

Without pretending to say whether the appointment is contemplated or not, but taking the Gazette's surmises as correct, we beg leave to remark that if it shall be made, the appointment will be creditable to the administration and beneficial to the country. If the loss of an election is a criterion of merit or demerit, where, in God's name, will be the worth, virtue and talents of the host of federalists who have been turned out of office "in a pointed and conspicuous manner" by the people? Mr. Rodney did indeed lose his election to the ninth congress, but it is yet uncertain whether the success of his opponent was not owing to fraudulent practices on the election ground—Mr. Rodney did indeed lose his election, but so did Mr. John Adams, Mr. C. C. Pinkney, and, to come nearer home, so did Mr. James Ross and Mr. George Latimer—and will the Gazette say that all these federal gentlemen were justly "dismissed by their constituents from their services?" If it will not grant this, it was an unfair and unfounded argument to use for objecting to Mr. Rodney's appointment. But still further—Mr. Bayard was dismissed from office "in a most pointed and conspicuous manner," yet it was never mentioned that this was a just reason why he should not be a senator.

With respect to the insinuation about incapacity, it is scarcely worth while to reply to it. It is enough to say, that it is unfounded and untrue—if Mr. Rodney shall be appointed, we venture to predict, the duties of the station will be performed with as much ability and integrity as under any former officer.

It is too late now to hear federalists complaining of appointments; the sense of the country, or those heretofore made, has been received, and to the credit of the administration. Were we to ask Mr. Relf, who shall be appointed attorney general? no doubt he would mention some federal lawyer, and here is the true solution of the enigma—no appointments please, unless those appointed are federalists, talents and integrity are out of the question.
