BY THE SENATE, December 21, 1814.

Gentlemen of the House of Delegates,

We have received your message proposing to go, this day, into the election of an United States senator; and after deliberating thereon, we have concluded that it is unnecessary and inexpedient to make the election at this time; there is now no vacancy in the representation of this state, in the senate of the United States; and should there be another session of congress before the next meeting of the general assembly, (the term of a senator having then expired) the constitution of the United States provides, that the executive of the state may supply such vacancy by a temporary appointment.

By order,

THOMAS ROGERS, Clk.

Which was read.
